NIGHT TRIP TO RINCON IS THE NOVELTY OF BLANCHARD'S TRIP

Reclamation Party Visits a Number of Farms in the Valley En Route to Elephant Butte Dam and One Public Meeting Is Addressed.

centrifugal pump similar to the nine inch one at present in use.

Made a Stop at Hatch.

The station at Hatch, the home of L. Clapp, president of the Elephant Butte Water Users' association, was the next stop. Mr. Clapp conducts a general store there and has a flour mill at Arrey, 18 miles north. He has 700 acres in the Rincon valley, watered about at different points, the largest single tract being 160 acres. His land is all cultivated with ditch water. Here a lunch was loaded into the cars and they proceeded through to the farm of J. N. Norvell, 7 1/2 miles from Hatch, and about half a mile north of Salem, a small village. Norvell came down from the San Luis valley in Colorado in 1907, and the following year bought this 79 acre ranch for $30 an acre. He has cultivated 54 acres of the land, planting 35 to alfalfa and a small tract of corn, while he has an orchard of 100 fruit trees of various kinds, one-half acre having been planted during the spring of the year. Some attention has been paid to the raising of hogs, and he now has 40 Berkshires crossed with Poland Chinas. He also has a few chickens and turkeys, and they are all in good condition.

Go Across the River.

Across the river from here, the party passed on to the home of H. T. Williams in the Garfield district, 12 miles from Hatch. He has but 47 acres, but there are no weeds there. He is utilizing all of the ground and getting all the good out of it that there is in it. He is demonstrating what can be done with a farm in the Rincon valley, and it is doubtful if there is another farm under the Elephant Butte project that is as well cared for and cultivated.

Always Water in Ditch.

There is always from 15 to 20 second feet of water in the ditch here, so he can have water for irrigation at all times. This water comes from an underground flow in the Rio Grande which is forced up about 15 miles above this point. Williams came into this section from Colorado Springs, Colo., five years ago, having farmed as much as 1,000 acres in that section, but now he declares that 40 acres is sufficient to make a living from.

Attend Public Meeting.

At the Garfield school house, one-half mile beyond, a small meeting was addressed by Mr. Blanchard, who urged cooperation. He was introduced by L. Clapp, who also introduced R. E. Bass.

strength, they but added another marvel to the many wonders nature has evolved to baffle the wits of man. Standing, as they did, monuments of stone on the sandy plain.

Road Smooth and Straight.

The road, smooth, level and straight in places, added to the zest of the tourists. Winding here and there with an occasional bump to relieve the monotony of a direct line, it is in itself a wonder. No drags are used upon it, no steam rollers, yet it is better than many, very many roads close to El Paso, that have been made by modern methods. True, it is not heavily traveled and, consequently, is not cut up as those roads which are subjected to much travel.

Stop at Bar Cross Ranch.

Just as the sun was hiding behind the black hills to the west, the party arrived at the Bar Cross ranch, which is managed by John Rhodes. Here a stop was made for water and inquiry as to the distance before them. Mrs. Rhodes informed the members of the party that the distance to the town of Rincon was about 21 miles to make. That meant just half the trip had been completed.

Visit Old Valley.

A trip was taken to the little old town of Colorado with its wide treeless plaza. The postoffice is named Dodey and the postmaster is Geo. H. Merton, who is also the town's American resident of the town, the others, of whom there are about 150, being of Mexican extraction.

Mr. Merton is a wealthy sheep owner, having about 16,000 head on the range. These are the first sheep encountered on the range north of El Paso, there being no other large herd between Rincon and El Paso.

Supper was taken at the home of Dr. J. E. Rosar, one-half mile from Hatch. It was fried chicken once again and mighty good it tasted to the hungry motorists. He has a 40 acre ranch here and is rapidly improving it, sowing corn, alfalfa and wheat, while he also has a five acre apple orchard well under way.

Get stuck in Sand.

Going home by way of Hatch, both machines were stuck in the sand half a mile out of Hatch, but a team of mules came along and saved the day, hauling them out. Both cars arrived in Rincon at 8:30 Sunday night.

At Night in Rincon.

While the shadows of night were slowly creeping over the "Jornado de muerta" (the journey of death), Saturday a scene far different from those of the days when the New Mexico desert received its name was enacted. In the light of the moon the weary travelers of the men of early days was the trip of C. J. Blanchard, statistician of the reclamation service, and party.

They were bound for Rincon, where they arrived at 9 o'clock that night, after a ride of three hours and a half across the desert. About half an hour was lost when the right front tire on W. N. Whitehead's Peerless car blew out.

Even the cattle wondered what had happened in the evolution of things mundane, that men could run over this land at the rate of 25 or 30 miles an hour in automobiles, where in other days men went to their death raving for lack of water, driven mad by the heat of the sun.

Mirages in the Desert.

To either side of the prairie, the mountains rose and cast their shadows down upon the land, creating mirages that, in the days of old would have lured men on to their death, mocking them to press onward only to find them with the dry sand dunes when they arrived.

Beautiful in their grandeur, these mountains, not so picturesque as the Organos, passed over the sun had begun to give evidence of the sun had begun

Visit Leasburg Dam.

Saturday the party made the trip to the Leasburg diversion dam, which by way of Paso, up through the old Dona Ana ditch, made 50 years ago, and in use until the Leasburg dam was completed in 1908. This old ditch is now used as a road.

Enroute the party passed along the well kept dam that leads out of Las Cruces, past fields filled with corn five feet and some more in height, and beautiful fields of green alfalfa and cantaloupes all the way to the quaint old town of Dona Ana six miles away, where many cantaloupe shipments are made.

Will Ship 200 Cars of Melons.

There will be 200 cars of cantaloupes shipped from Dona Ana and Las Cruces this season, the bulk of the crop going to New York, while a few cars will go to Boston, Mass., and Pittsburg, Pa. No drags are used upon it, no steam rollers, yet it is better than many, very many roads close to El Paso, that have been made by modern methods. True, it is not heavily traveled and, consequently, is not cut up as those roads which are subjected to much travel.

Kill a Rattlesnake.

From the dam, the party went to the home of major W. H. H. Llewellyn where fried chicken dinner was served with all the other things that go with it. After dinner all went to old Fort Selden, established in 1886 and abandoned in 1886 by the United States government. Here a rattlesnake was killed. It had a rattlesnake and a button and Charles Braun got it for a souvenir.

The next place visited was the hot well, in which water which reaches a temperature of 152 degrees Fahrenheit, is pumped. At one time there was a free flow here, but attempts to get a faster supply led to dynamite being used. This instead of blowing out the hole, filled it with rock and stopped the flow.

A hotel and bathing resort is to be established here and plans have already been made therefor. While stuck has been placed on the market in El Paso.

There is at present a 20 foot well there and this is being pumped with a five horse power centrifugal pump, but plans have been made for the installation of a 12 horse power engine and the sinking of four inch pipe for pumping the water into other parts of the ground. This well is located on the Santa Fe railroad right of way, and a fence around it marks the boundary of the United States government land.

Have Tire Troubles.

It required about an hour and a half to make the trip up and an equal length of time to come back. When almost to Las Cruces, Charles O'Hara, remained with him to repair it. H. A. Shaw and C. A. Brann abandoned that auto and got into a new one before they reached town.

The party left Las Cruces for Rincon by automobile at 5:30. W. W. Whitehead having brought his seven year old Peerless car, as up from El Paso to make the trip.

From a Boy's Dream.

Statistician Blanchard, speaking of the Elephant Butte project, said: "This project would not have been if it had not been for the dream of a boy, who when he was from the Boston Tech., from which he had just graduated. He came out to the wilderness and at Embury near the Colorado line he stayed for a year. He was making a hydrographic survey. He dreamed from time to time and by youth has stood by you when it was a dream which are still preserved. Yes, 20 years ago F. H. Newell dreamed of the Elephant Butte project and what of his dream is now the reality of the country then lying in this valley.

Opposition of Denver Papers.

"When that came a time when others fought the proposition. Colorado wanted some of the waters of the Rio Grande and from that date the fight was on. The Denver papers of the Reclamation service.

They have stuck by the reclamation service in the various irrigation congresses but do not lose sight of the fact that the reclamation service has stood by you has stood by you when it would have been easier to pass the matter up to the supreme court in the state of decision. The reclamation service never faltered even though criticism was heaped upon it and calumny about the men spread broadcast."

"FOGG'S IDEALS" ARE COMING SOON

El Paso Manager Writes That He Is Gathering a Strong Musical Comedy Company on the Coast.

"Fogg's Ideals" will be the name of the musical comedy company which is to open at the Crawford theatre the last week in August. Manager Fogg writes from Los Angeles that he has succeeded in getting together some of the best talent on the coast and sends clippings from some of the California papers to prove it.

Los Angeles is to be the prima donna, and Mr. Fogg says of her: "She is the greatest prima donna I have ever heard sing in any company. A San Diego paper chronicling her visit to the seaside city, says: 'Miss Montgomery can aptly be termed California's favorite singer.'"

Lon Chaney is to be the principal comedian and producer. He is now directing productions for the Universal studios in California. According to "The Photoplay," Mr. Chaney is directing and playing the leads.

Rose Aronson, who was one time a favorite of El Paso patrons of the old Happy Hour theatre and later came here in a road show, is to be a member of the Fogg company. Aronson is now being featured with the Keystone Musical Comedy company in Los Angeles.

Al Gardner, a singer; Gertrude Weber, a dancer of note, and Minta Durfee, a soprano who is well known on the coast, two men for the minor parts and eight dancing girls will complete the company.

Manager Fogg writes that if El Paso doesn't pronounce the new company the best ever seen in El Paso in musical stock, he is no judge of show material.

STUMBLE ON SIMPLE WORD

Educators Claim That in Spelling, Average Man Ignores Words of Ordinary Usage.

It's not always the words like parabola, "aphthia" and "xylophone" stump the average man and even make the more erudite elder brother, the scholar pause when he strikes them. Some of the simplest words in the language are often the ones that makes the most trouble. Take the word "wield," for instance. If you saw it spelled "wield," you would be sure every time it wasn't right. And the same applies to the word "alege" and others of like nature.

And how many times have you been led into an argument at the office, in your home or at the barber shop on the correct spelling of some of the apparently easy words. What's the answer? Why, look in the dictionary, of course. And if you want to be certain that the word is the word, look in the dictionary. It's just what you want. It's up to date almost to yesterday and it's a pretty safe bet that the hundred words have been added to the language since it came from the publisher's hands recently.

The many features which have been added to the New Modern English Illustrated Dictionary, which is the one that The Herald is enabling its readers to secure, will make this book a most valuable addition to your library.
